New Life Transport Parts Center announces the expansion of facilities and operations

As part of its overall plan to improve customer service and meet the evolving needs of its distribution customers and strategic partners, New Life has announced that it will increase its Dallas warehouse space by 50% in February of 2017. Operations will expand customer service capabilities to provide twice per week deliveries. In addition, customers will also be able to take advantage of expanded daily LTL and parcel shipment programs. “The expansion in Dallas comes on the heels of our recent Transport Parts Center expansion in Atlanta last fall, and is part of our overall goal to remain a leader in wholesale trailer parts as well as our expanding truck parts distribution”, stated Robert Lindley, President of New Life.

In August of 2016, New Life expanded its distribution capabilities in the Southeastern US by doubling inventories, adding personnel, and expanding its fleet operations. Currently New Life’s Atlanta TPC provides weekly delivery services in the Southeast and in most areas provides twice per week shipments to its customers. “Based on our initial success and overwhelming customer response with our changes in Atlanta, we know continued advancement of our capabilities will be well received by our customers”, added Dan Millar, SVP of Sales & Marketing. New Life’s expansions will reduce the overall time of customer order cycles by placing the inventory closer to its customers and increasing the pace of deliveries. New Life says it will be able to create more value for its distributors, their fleet customers and their strategic partners.
